We wanted to try working in Hokkaido, so we searched online for information. There aren't many job posting sites, though. Then we found this matching plan, which offers local jobs in Japanese and English both. It was so useful. Our contact helped over email and Skype, and we were able to go directly from France to Tomarimura. It made it easy to go to Japan.

I had worked at a guest house before, so I wanted to try working outdoors. I applied for farm work. It was my first time, and it was a lot of hard work, but the staff were supportive, and I made it through. On days off, I went by car to other towns, and when the weather was good you could see Mt. Yotei. It was a beautiful environment to work in.
